RAINS EXPECTED TO HELP QUAIL POPULATION IN VA.

Reports are beginning to come in from various sections of the state about young quail that are being observed, according to C. F. Phelps, chief of the Game Division of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries.

Phelps says he is hopeful that recent rains will prove helpful in improving the conditions necessary for a good crop of bobwhite quail in Virginia.

CALF EATS BALLOON

Chickasha, Okla.- One of Henry Cochran's calves speid a tasty looking morsel in the pasture and took a few bites. Mrs. Cochran found the calf dead and called for a veterinarian, who performed an autopsy. He found the calf had swallowed several pieces of a Weather Bureau balloon. The small metal box, containing meterological instruments, found near the calf, was sent the the Weather Bureau.

12 FINGERS; 12 TOES

Oklahoma City.- Fingerprinting experts of the Police Department were startled when they placed 54-year-old Oran Telford's hands on the fingerprint card, which contains five slots, and discovered there was a finger over. Telford had six fingers on each hand, and taking off his shoes, he showed officers he had six toes on each foot.

750-000 VISITORS AT WILLIAMSBURG LAST YEAR

Williamsburg.- A broad new research program to explore details of life in colonial America has been established by Colonial Williamsburg, it was disclosed by President Kenneth Chorley in the organization's annual report, published here today.

Anticipating an expanded staff, grants-in-aid, and provisions for research by contract, the program will cost over half a million dollars.

In the past, Mr. Chorley stated, Colonial Williamsburg's research has been largely devoted to the pressing needs of the physical restoration of Williamsburg. Under the new program political, social, economic, cultural and religious life of the 18th century will be studied.

Other highlights of the report were:

. . . Eight more colonial buildings were reconstructed last year. Since its inauguration in 1926, Colonial Williamsburg has restored 82 original 18th century buildings and reconstructed 375 more on their original foundations.

. . . Plans were developed for a new building to house the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Collection. Made possible by a $1,000,000 gift from Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the buildings nine galleries will exhibit one of the country's most distinguished folk art collections.

. . . .Nearly three quarters of a million visitors last year . . including the Queen Mother of England . . brought the total number of visitors since the Restoration began to 7,200,000.

. . .Colonial Williamsburg's school program attracted more than 45,000 students from 955 schools throughout the country.

. . .Reconstruction of two additional Craft Shops brought to 12 the number of working shops where trades and handcrafts are carried on just as they were 200 years ago in the colonial city when Washington, Jefferson, Patrick Henry, George Mason and others helped to mold the American Republic.

MOST Modern V8 FOR YOUR JOB!

NOW...THE SHORTEST STROKE V8's IN ANY LEADING TRUCK!

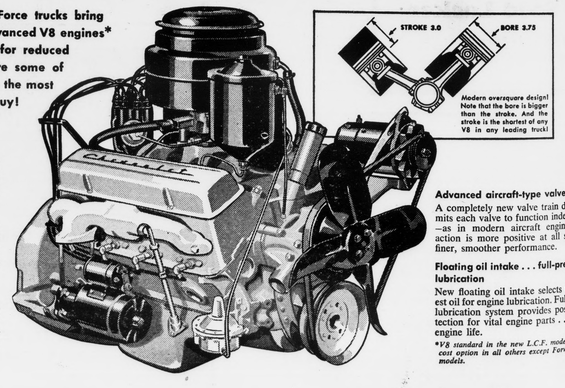
Now new Chevrolet Task-Force trucks bring you the industry's most advanced V8 engines* with an ultra-short stroke for reduced friction and wear. Here are some of the features that make 'em the most modern V8's money can buy!



Modern 12-volt electrical system
You get double the punch for quicker starting (up to 30% faster cranking speed) and more efficient ignition for finer performance. Also, you have a greater reserve of electrical power.

Gas-saving high-compression ratio
With a high 7.5 to 1 compression ratio, Chevrolet's new V8 truck engines squeeze extra power – and work – out of every tankful of gas. Your ton-mile hauling costs go down with this modern V8 power on the job!

Extra-high power per pound
The compact, super-efficient design of these advanced V8's results in high power output per pound of engine weight. This means that more of the power is actually available for hauling.

Advanced aircraft-type valves
A completely new valve train design permits each valve to function independently –as in modern aircraft engines. Valve action is more positive at all speeds for finer, smoother performance.

Floating oil intake . . . full-pressure lubrication
New floating oil intake selects the cleanest oil for engine lubrication. Full-pressure lubrication system provides positive protection for vital engine parts . . . extends engine life.

V8 standard in the new L.C.F. models, at extra cost option in all others except Forward-Control models.*

There're some tricks of the trade when it comes to making cut flowers last longer.

Miss Ruth Jamison, house furnishings specialist at VPI, says to cut flowers in the cool of the evening or early morning. Stand them up to their necks in cold water in a dark place several hours or overnight before arranging them. Cut stems with a sharp knife on a slant to enable each to absorb more water. Burn with matches the stems of flowers with milky sap such as poppies and hollyhock, then place in cold water. Hollow-stemmed flowers such as dahlias, delphiniums, lupines, and larkspur, can best be conditioned by dipping the cut ends into boiling water for a short period. Place them in cold water overnight.

Strip off any foliage that will be under water before arranging the flowers. Cut flowers when in bud and let them open up in the arrangement.

Miss Jamison also has these "conditioning" tips for specific flowers:

Roses condition best when they are cut in the bud and allowed to stand in a deep container of water in which one teaspoon of alum per quart has been added.

Calendulas, zinnas, marigolds, and snapdragons, all respond to one teaspoon of sugar for each quart of water.

Forget-me-nots, lillies of the valley, and coralbells like two drops of alcohol in each quart of water.

Violets like water on their flowers. Bunch them first. Immerse the bunches face down in water, and let the folwers drink from the flower heads as well as the stem ends.

Iris and tulips last longer when picked in the tight bud. Wrap in wet newspaper immediately and put into water up to the buds.

Shrub material such as forsythia, apple blossoms, pear, and quince, all do best when cut in the bud. Crush the stems so they will absorbe more water.

FINISHES 8 YEARS IN 3

Syracuse, N. Y.- Nine years ago, Margaret Gregory, daughter of vaudeville entertainers, had never had a day's formal education. On June 6th, this year, Margaret received her A. B. degree from Syracuse University's College of Liberal Arts, having completed a four-year high school course, plus a four-year college course in three years. And she did it with better than a B average.

In Fashion now

American women can thank the remarkable ready-to-wear industry of this country for the fact that, as a nation, they are recognized for the best-dressed in the world today.

Even France, so long considered the fashion capitol of the world, has bowed to American know-how. The French fashion industry has sent fourteen leading members of their industry to America to study our methods.

In France, the word "copy" in dressmaking circles is enough to incite a small revolution. The women have been educated to think that to be seen in the same outfit as another is a fate almost worse than death.

For this reason only about 40 per cent of the feminine populaton buy ready-to-wear clothes. The rest buy yard goods and make their own clothes or have them made by a dressmaker.

In any event, they are, in most cases, more expensive than a garment of similar quality and attractiveness in this country.

Now the French are going to try to re-educate their women to fully appreciate the wonders of mass-produced clothes. It will enable a much larger percentage of French women to enjoy attractive and well-made clothes at a moderate price.

The teamwork between manufacturer - retailer - press - consumer is something the French must be evident before French ready-to-wear can have the wide acceptance it has here in America.

News from Hollywood

Gen. Walter Bedell Smith faced the cameras at Universal-International recently when he made the opening narration for Audie Murphy's "To Hell and Back."

When Rhonda Fleming appears in "Duo," which is to be made in Italy this summer, she has the chance to sing several songs — her first in a picture. She is now busy, preparing for "Tennessee Partners."

Metro is said to be palnning a musical remake of "Reunion in Vienna," with Edmund Purdom in the leading role.

Desi Arnaz would like to have William Powell to play Lucille Ball's father in their "Guardian Angel" film.

Milton Sperling wants Humphrey Bogart for J. P. Marquand's "Melvin Godwin, U. S. A."

So well received was Ralph Bellamy's performance in "Fearful Decision," on television that Metro bought the story for a movie and has Henry Fonda reading the script.

Jody Lawrence has replaced Elisabeth Montgomery, daughter of the famous Robert, in "Too Late, My Love." Jody, who got her release from a major studio contract a year and a half ago, took a job as a waitress to support herself while learning to act.

Dorothy Dandridge is to have the role of the slave girl, Tuptin with Yul Brunner in "The King and I."

Film-makers think of everything. Leland Hayward, en route to Europe to scout locations for the Lindbergh picture, "The Spirit of St. Louis," plans to recreate Le Bourget aid field to look just like it did in May, 1927, when Lindbergh landed there.

After a two year absence from the screen, James Craig returns in "News Is Made at Night."

Joan Crawford is taking off for Europe in true Hollywood-actress style — she will have 36 trunks which will carry 26 fur coats and jackets, 36 pairs of shoes and 25 cocktail dresses, to mention only a few of the items.

Having finished work on "Storm Fear," Cornel Wilde, who produced, directed and starred in the film, is off for Mexico with his wife, Jean Wallace, for a vacation of sorts. He plans to use some time to look for location sites for his next picture, "Titans."

"Babes in Toyland" will be Walt Disney's next big movie. He doesn't plan to start it, however, until "Sleeping Beauty" is finished a year and a half from now.
